

And the little investigation now in progress in New Orleans will like to throw full light upon the manner of getting in. In the future as the list of Presidents shall be read over, when Hayes's name is reached, involuntarily will the memory of Wells, and son, Casenave and Kenner pass in review before the mind of the reader.

PISTOLS IN DANVILLE, VIRGINIA.—Quite an excitement was occasioned on the street of Danville, Va., last week, by difficulty between two warehousemen in which pistols were used freely. Mr. P. S. Sterne, one of the proprietors of the Cabell warehouse, and John Wilkerson, Esq., formerly doorkeeper of the Virginia House of Delegates, now connected with the public warehouse. Several shots were fired on both sides, only one of which did any damage. The affray occurred in front of the Cabell warehouse on Broad street. Mr. Sterne stood in his door while Mr. Wilkerson held his ground in the street. One shot fired by Sterne passed through Wilkerson's vest and shirt, grazed the skin, and then went through his coat, but did no further damage. Mr. Sterne was not hurt.

A LADY SENTENCED FOR ROBBERING THE MAILS.—A young lady, Miss Emma Davenport, said to be most respectably connected, was brought to Richmond, Va., on Sunday last, charged with an offense against the United States postal laws. She was but twenty-one years of age, and fair. The evidence at the trial developed that she had been for a long time assistant and acting postmaster at Goodchain Court House and had horrified a silk dress sent by mail to that post-office. She tearfully pleaded guilty before the United States Circuit Court Thursday morning, and was permitted to return to Goodchain on payment of a fine of $100 and costs.
